

Notes on Contributors

Adenekan (Nick) Dedeke is an Executive Professor of Supply Chain and Information Management at Northeastern University, Boston. His research focuses on technology transformation and the intersection of ethics, technology, and sustainability. He is a member of the Academy of Management and the Business and Professional Ethics Association. He holds a PhD from the Technical University of Kaiserslautern, Germany. He has published articles, book reviews, cases, and essays in academic and practitioner journals, including the Journal of Business Ethics, Tourism Management, IEEE Spectrum, IEEE Software, Computer, and IEEE Security & Privacy. a.dedeke@northeastern.edu.

Thomas Köllen is senior lecturer in Business Ethics and HRM at the Institute of Organization and Human Resource Management (IOP) at the University of Bern. His research interests include gender, gender identity, and sexual orientation in management and organizations, national identities and nationalism in the workplace, and continental ethics. He has published in journals including Journal of Management Inquiry, Management International Review, Scandinavian Journal of Management, Journal of Business Ethics, International Journal of Human Resource Management, Philosophy of Management, and Review of Managerial Science. He is the editor of the book series Diversity and Inclusion Research (Springer), and he is associate editor of the journal Equality, Diversity, and Inclusion. thomas.koellen@unibe.ch.

Irina M. Kopaneva (PhD, Washington State University) is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Communication at the University of Colorado Colorado Springs. Her main research interests include identity, organizational purpose, and alternative organizing. ikopanev@uccs.edu.

Sara Mandray is a PhD Candidate in Management and Organizational Behavior at ESCP Business School (Paris Campus). In her research, she tries to build bridges between organizational studies and philosophy, especially ancient philosophy. She graduated from HEC Paris. Her master thesis, based on a field research at Michelin, the French tire company, was awarded HEC Paris Best Thesis in Entrepreneurship Award. Before turning to management sciences, she studied Arts and Humanities at the Ecole Normale Supérieure in Paris. She holds a master's degree in Classics from the Sorbonne. She published François Michelin. À l'école du management intégral (Paris: Atlante, 2019). sara.mandray@edu.escp.eu.

Kerrin Myres has founded two social enterprises and two for-profit enterprises, as well as mentoring countless entrepreneurs during the start-up and growth phases of their businesses. In addition to her entrepreneurial experience, Prof Myres has worked for a variety of private, public, and non-profit enterprises across sub-Saharan Africa. She has over thirty-five years of experience providing research, consulting, and advisory services to businesses at all stages of development in a wide range of industries. Her doctoral thesis focussed on the unconventional start-up processes of entrepreneurs in South Africa. Prof. Myres lectures in entrepreneurship, personal mastery and qualitative research methodology and supervises research at Masters and Doctoral level. myresk@gibs.co.za.

Mollie Painter is an international scholar and public speaker specializing in business ethics, CSR, sustainability, and responsible leadership. She has held academic positions in South Africa, the USA, the UK, and Slovenia. She currently heads up the Responsible and Sustainable Business Lab (RSB Lab), a Research Centre within Nottingham Business School, Nottingham Trent University, UK, and is an Extraordinary Professor at the Gordon Institute of Business Science, University of Pretoria. She also serves as co-Editor-in-Chief of Business Ethics Quarterly, and has a visiting professorship at Copenhagen Business School. Mollie's most recent research focuses on sustainability, organisational culture, gender and leadership, and ethics within complex organisational environments. As a philosopher by training, her trademark is bringing insights from twentieth-century and European philosophy to management and organisational studies. mollie.painter@ntu.ac.uk.

Gideon Pogrand is the founding director of the Centre for Business Ethics (CfBE) at the University of Pretoria's Gordon Institute of Business Science (GIBS), where he is a faculty member. He established the GIBS Ethics Barometer, surveying around 30,000 employees of thirty leading South African companies. His current research focuses on corporate forgiveness, and he pursuing a PhD though publication. pograndg@gibs.co.za.

Elme Vivier is a Senior Research Fellow in the Responsible and Sustainable Business (RSB) Lab in the Department of Management at Nottingham Business School. She teaches business ethics and ethical decision-making at the full-time

MBA and Executive MBA levels and supervises postgraduate students. Elmé holds a masters degree in philosophy and a PhD in leadership from the University of Pretoria. Her areas of research include public, community, and ethical leadership; local governance, community engagement, and cross-sectoral collaboration. She has published articles in Leadership, Public Management Review, and African Journal of Business Ethics. elme.vivier@ntu.ac.uk.