

Eleventh Annual Essay Competition
— In an effort to encourage the study of the philosophy of Leibniz in North America and to give recognition to deserving scholars, the Leibniz Society of North America is continuing its annual Essay Competition. Submitted essays should be on some aspect of the philosophy of Leibniz; they should be from twelve to twenty-five pages in length (double-spaced), and should be submitted by June 1, 1993, as determined by postmark. The winning essay (or essays) will be presented before the Society at the 1993-94 A.P.A. Meetings. To facilitate anonymous judging, the author's name should be given only on a separate title page or cover sheet and should not appear in the body or footnotes of the paper. Judges reserve the right not to name a winner in the event that none of the submissions is deemed to be of sufficient quality or suitability for the award. Suitability for oral presentation may play a role in the judging. Full scholarly apparatus is preferred but not required; sufficiently developed works-in-progress will, therefore, have a chance in the competition and may be submitted. Previous winners are encouraged to re-enter, but others will be preferred in the case of a determination of approximately equal merit among the best submitted essays. Essays in French or German may be submitted as well as those in English, but all applicants should keep in mind the expectation of presentation and should not submit an essay unless they will be able to read their paper at the designated A.P.A. Meeting. Please send submissions to the Editor of the Leibniz Society Newsletter, at the address below.
