

Sleigh, R. C., Jr., Leibniz and Arnauld: A Commentary on their Correspondence (Yale U. Press, 1990).

CALL FOR CONTRIBUTIONS:

We need your help. You are all invited to contribute to these pages in future issues. To maintain a modest size and cost, we've established an upper limit of three (3) typewritten manuscript pages (standard type size) for each entry. (In rare cases, exceptions to this limit might be in order.) In order to be considered for the 1992 Review, book reviews must be received by September 30, 1992. This will allow us to send a copy to the book's author or editor for review before the final version is printed. Any other news items must be received by November 30, 1992. It would help if you could send a note ahead of time announcing your intent to write a piece, and your estimate of its length. Also, if possible put your submission on a 3 1/2-inch floppy disk (single, double-sided, or high density) either as a text-only file or (preferably) in Microsoft Word 4.0 format for Macintosh. Please send it to the Glenn Hartz, Philosophy Department, Ohio State University, 1680 University Drive, Mansfield, Ohio 44906 USA (E-mail: hartz.1@osu.edu Fax: (419) 755-4241 Phone: (419) 755-4354).

EDITORIAL POLICY:

The editorial policy will be to print everything of sufficient interest to our members, allowing for reasonable limits of space and a certain amount of editorial judgment. If changes in the submitted text are required, an effort will be made to get the author's approval before altering it. We will adopt the following attitude towards the difficult issue of a publisher's commercial interest. Our goal will be to notify our members of a sampling of the best work on Leibniz, no matter who publishes it. If a certain press or journal is featured more prominently in certain issues, this just means that during that particular year it turned out some interesting Leibniz material which caught the attention of someone willing to write about it. Which books and articles are actually announced or reviewed depends mainly on the membership — that is, those who volunteer to write up and submit notices and reviews. There will be no attempt to skew the Review towards a particular press, just as no favoritism will be shown to any particular school or style of Leibniz studies. This policy is provisional and is likely to evolve in these early stages in large part on the basis of input from the membership and the Executive Committee.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS:

We gratefully acknowledge the efforts of those who wrote items for the Review. Funding for the printing and mailing of the Newsletter and Review has been generously provided by the Mansfield Campus and the College of Humanities of The Ohio State University. We also wish to thank Tammy Smith for her help with the typesetting.
