

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS AND SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION

In this issue we wish to thank Robert Merrihew Adams for his wide-ranging contributions to Leibniz scholarship. Some of those appeared in these pages in past years in the form of symposia, reviews, and (less visibly) the referee behind an article. I also want to thank Dan Garber for writing the lead article on Bob. I am grateful for the volunteer work of all the other contributors, referees, and members. Larry Carlin has again been helpful this year in preparing the “Recent Works” section.

Support and funding for typesetting, printing, and mailing is provided in part by The Ohio State University at Mansfield. Those who have secured institutional subscriptions to the Review, or who have paid Leibniz Society of North America dues or made cash contributions, are also thanked for generating funding. Daniel Garber, Vincenzo De Risi, Gregory Brown, Donald Rutherford, Laurence Carlin, and Mark Kulstad have contributed creative ideas about how to improve the Review. The faithful support of the Society’s Executive Committee and President has been invaluable, as has the help of Marna Utz in keeping track of membership information and preparing the mailings.

This takes you to Gregory Brown’s Leibniz site, where one can find up-to-date information about the Society, including the Newsletter edited by Mark Kulstad. Please note the essay competition for 2013, and bring it to the attention of young scholars. Also please note that recently a concerted effort has been made to update the email addresses of members. If your email address changes please contact Greg (gbrown@uh.edu) and the society’s secretary-treasurer (beginning in 2013), Stephen Puryear (puryear1@stanford.edu) with the correct email address. Also notify me, please, of any change of mailing address.
