

About the Authors

Michael J. Barga works with formerly homeless individuals and families as a case manager for Montgomery County Coalition for the Homeless in Gaithersburg, Maryland. Prior to this position, he provided services for a variety of populations, predominately adults with thought disorder, as a psychiatric hospital social worker at Adventist Behavioral Health in Rockville, Maryland. He is a 2013 graduate of Catholic University's MSW Program with a Clinical Health Concentration. From 2009 to 2010, he served as a Mercy Volunteer with the homeless outreach team of Project H.O.M.E. in Philadelphia. He earned a B.A. in history and music from Mount St. Mary's in 2009.

Ryan J. Barilleaux is Paul Rejai Professor of Political Science at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. He is the former editor-in-chief of Catholic Social Science Review and is the author of ten books and many articles on the American presidency, national politics, and Catholic social thought.

Rev. Msgr. Robert J. Batule was the first chaplain of the Society of Catholic Social Scientists. He holds graduate degrees in sociology and theology and taught on the faculty of the Immaculate Conception Seminary in Lloyd Harbor, New York (2008–2012), and Saint Joseph Seminary in Yonkers, New York (2012–2013). Over the years, he has published in a variety of Catholic periodicals and journals. He is currently the pastor of Corpus Christi Church in Mineola, New York.

Gerard V. Bradley is professor of law at the University of Notre Dame, where he teaches legal ethics and constitutional law. At Notre Dame he directs (with John Finnis) the Natural Law Institute and co-edits The American Journal of Jurisprudence, an international forum for legal philosophy. Bradley was a visiting fellow at the Hoover Institution of Stanford University and is a senior fellow of the Witherspoon Institute in Princeton, New Jersey. He served for many years as president of the Fellowship of Catholic Scholars. Bradley received his B.A. and J.D. degrees from Cornell University, graduating summa cum laude from the law school in 1980. After serving in the Trial Division of the Manhattan District Attorney's Office he joined the law faculty at the University of Illinois. He moved to Notre Dame in 1992. Bradley has published over one hundred scholarly articles and reviews. His most recent books are an edited collection of essays titled Challenges to Religious Liberty in the Twenty-First Century (Cambridge University Press, 2012), Unquiet Americans: U.S. Catholics and America's Common Good (St. Augustine's Press, 2013), and Essays on Law, Religion, and Morality (St. Augustine's Press, 2014). He is currently working on a book about regulating obscenity in the Internet age.

Peter J. Colosi is assistant professor of philosophy at Salve Regina University in Newport, Rhode Island. From 2009 to 2015, he was assistant/associate professor of moral theology at St. Charles Borromeo Seminary in Wynnewood, Pennsylvania. From 1999 to 2007, he was instructor/assistant professor of philosophy for Franciscan University of Steubenville at their program in Gaming, Austria. His website is www.peterjcolosi.com. Since 2007, he has been organizing, with friends in Europe, a series of International Symposia on St. John Paul II's Theology of the Body. All of the Symposia talks can be viewed at www.tobinternationalsymposia.com.

David F. Dieteman is a lecturer in management at the Sam and Irene Black School of Business at Penn State Erie, The Behrend College, where he has taught business law and business ethics since 2009. He holds a B.A. from the University of Notre Dame, an M.A. from the University of Illinois, and is working to complete his Ph.D. from the Catholic University of America. He also holds a J.D. from Case Western Reserve University School of Law, and actively practiced law for fifteen years.

Fr. Lawrence Donohoo of the Archdiocese of Baltimore is associate professor of systematic theology at Mount St. Mary's Seminary in Emmitsburg and serves as assigned priest in nearby St. Anthony's Shrine and Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Parishes. He obtained his M.A. in philosophy from the Catholic University of America, earned the S.T.B. and S.T.L. from the Dominican House of Studies in Washington, D.C., and completed his doctoral studies at the University of Munich in fundamental and systematic theology. Fr. Donohoo's scholarly and popular publications embrace a variety of topics. Currently in his twenty-second year of teaching, Fr. Donohoo has been a longtime weekend preacher in the Archdioceses of Baltimore and Washington, and has served as assigned priest for a number of Bavarian parishes over the years.

Kimberly Geogedes received her Ph.D. in history from the University of Wisconsin-Madison, and has been teaching history at Franciscan University of Steubenville since 1994. She has served as chair of the Department of History and Anthropology since 2000.

Robert F. Gorman is University Distinguished Professor of Political Science and International Studies at Texas State University in San Marcos, Texas. He also teaches at St. John Paul II Catholic High School in Schertz, Texas, and serves as a deacon for the Archdiocese of San Antonio at Sts.

Peter and Paul Church in New Braunfels, Texas. He is the author of more than a dozen books, including most recently his edited volume Toward the Common Good: A Catholic Critique of the Discipline of Political Science (2011) as well as numerous articles relating to international relations, international organization, refugee and asylum policy, African politics, intellectual history, patristic writings, and church history.

L. Joseph Hebert is professor of political science and leadership studies and director of pre-law studies at St. Ambrose University in Davenport, Iowa. He is the author of More than Kings and Less Than Men: Tocqueville on the Promise and Perils of Democratic Individualism (2010) and co-editor of Alexis de Tocqueville and the Art of Democratic Statesmanship (2011). Beginning with the 2015 issue, he is editor in chief of The Catholic Social Science Review.

Stephen M. Krason is professor of political science and legal studies and associate director of the Veritas Center for Ethics in Public Life at Franciscan University of Steubenville. He is also co-founder and president of the Society of Catholic Social Scientists. His most recent books are The Transformation of the American Democratic Republic and two edited volumes in the SCSS's Catholic Social Thought Book Series, Child Abuse, Family Rights, and the Child Protective System and The Crisis of Religious Liberty.

James Likoudis is president emeritus of Catholics United for the Faith (CUF), and a former teacher and college instructor in history and government. He has written and lectured extensively on sex education, catechetics, liturgy, and Catholic–Eastern Orthodox relations. He is the author of Ending the Byzantine Greek Schism (Catholics United for the Faith, 1983), The Divine Primacy of the Bishop of Rome and Modern Eastern Orthodoxy (St. Martin de Porres Lay Dominican Community, 2002), Eastern Orthodoxy and the See of Peter (POS, 2006), and co-author (with Kenneth D. Whitehead) of The Pope, the Council, and the Mass (rev. ed., Emmaus Road Publishing, 2006). Soon to appear is The Heralds of a Catholic Russia: Twelve Spiritual Pilgrims from Byzantium to Rome (Grotto Press). In 2002 he received the Blessed Frederick Ozanam Award from the Society of Catholic Social Scientists. He lives in Montour Falls, N.Y. Website: www.jameslikoudispage.com.

Elmar Nass is professor of economic and social ethics at the Wilhelm Loehe University Fürth/Germany (WLH). As alumnus of the Pontifical German College he was ordained a priest in Rome 1994. In his pastoral years in the parish his main focus was politico-religious youth work. He received his PhDs in theology in 2003 and in 2006 in Social Sciences. After that, he was episcopal delegate for the formation of pastoral staff in the Diocese of Aachen. In 2013 he was appointed professor in Fürth. In 2014 he habilitated at the Faculty of Philosophy and received the Venia Legendi for “Christian Economic and Social Ethics.” Since January 2015 he has been director of the Ethics Institute at the WLH. His research interests include ethics of monetary policy, leadership ethics, social justice, ethics of the economic system, Capability Approach, Catholic social teaching, and Church mission for the development of values in society.

About the Authors

Mark D. Popowski is a history professor at Collin College in Frisco, Texas. His teaching field is American history. He is the author of The Rise and Fall of Triumph: The History of a Radical Roman Catholic Magazine, 1966-1976 (2011). His research interest is the intersection of religion and politics in American history. Currently, he is editing—and contributing to—a collection of essays examining Frederick D. Wilhelmsen’s thought.

Marc V. Rugani is a Ph.D. student in moral theology/ethics at The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. He holds an M.T.S. from the University of Notre Dame, and an A.B. from Georgetown University. He is a First-Year Experience teaching fellow at CUA and has previously held teaching appointments at Xavier High School, New York, and Fordham Preparatory School. His research interests include the history of modern Catholic social teaching, virtue ethics, and integral economic development.

James V. Schall, S.J., is Professor Emeritus, Georgetown University. He currently resides in Los Gatos, California. Among his books are The Mind That Is Catholic, The Modern Age, Remembering Belloc, and On Christianity & Prosperity.