

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

Teodor Dima is Member of the Romanian Academy and Director of the “Gheorghe Zane” Economic and Social Research Institute of the Romanian Academy. He is a philosopher with contributions in epistemology, philosophy of science, and logic. His books include: The Inductive Methods (1975), Between Prudence and Error. Essay on the Nature and Dynamics of Science (1978), Explanation and Understanding (vol I. 1980, vol. II 1994), Looking Backwards with Deference (2006), all published in Romanian. Contact: tudoreldima2008@yahoo.com.

James Filler is a philosophy doctoral student at the University of Georgia, Athens. His main areas of interest are history of philosophy, metaphysics, continental philosophy, ancient philosophy, and Neo-Platonism. His publications include “Ascending from the Ashes: Images of Plato in Bradbury’s Fahrenheit 451” (Philosophy and Literature, forthcoming). Contact: jsfiller@uga.edu.

B.J.C. Madison is an Assistant Professor of Philosophy at the United Arab Emirates University. His main research interests lie in epistemology, and in related issues in the philosophy of religion and the philosophy of mind. He has authored papers in these areas for The Australasian Journal of Philosophy, Grazer Philosophische Studien, Philosophy Compass, The Journal of Philosophical Research, and Acta Analytica. The primary focus of his current research is on the internalism/externalism distinction in epistemology. Contact: bjcmadison@gmail.com.

Benjamin W. McCraw is an instructor in philosophy at the University of South Carolina Upstate in Spartanburg, SC. He received his Ph. D. from the University of Georgia in 2012. His main areas of research are in philosophy of religion and epistemology. His recent publications include “Not So Superlative: The Fourth Way as Comparatively Problematic” forthcoming in Robert Arp, ed., Debating Aquinas’ Proofs for God’s Existence in the 21st Century (Rodopi Press) and reviews in the International Journal for Philosophy of Religion (2013), Ratio (2014), and Philosophy in Review (2014). Contact: bmccraw@uscupstate.edu.

Moti Mizrahi is Assistant Professor in the Philosophy Department at St. John's University. He works in argumentation, epistemology, metaphilosophy, and philosophy of science. His recent publications include "Does Conceivability Entail Metaphysical Possibility?" (with David R. Morrow, Ratio, forthcoming), "Constructive Empiricism: Normative or Descriptive?" (International Journal of Philosophical Studies, forthcoming), and "The Argument from Underconsideration and Relative Realism" (International Studies in the Philosophy of Science, forthcoming). Contact: motimizra@gmail.com.

Frederic Peters is a post doctoral Research Fellow in the Psychology Department, University of New England (Australia) with a twin focus on preconscious perceptual mechanisms and a theory of consciousness focused on the central characteristic of reflexivity, including subjective and empirical warrants for this central auto-noetic capacity, the neural machinery responsible for generating it, and evolutionary reason for its emergence. Contact: fpeters3@une.edu.au.