

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

David Coss is an Instructor of Philosophy at Indiana University Kokomo. His primary research interests lie in Epistemology, where he currently focuses on issues surrounding Contextualism and Pragmatic Encroachment, although he also has an interest in social epistemology (esp. epistemic injustice). His recent papers include “Contextualism and Context Internalism” published in this journal as well as “Interest-Relative Invariantism and Indifference Problems” published in Acta Analytica. He is particularly interested in the proper conceptualize of practical interests and epistemic contexts within the framework of Contextualism and IRI, as well as issues surrounding the intersection of epistemology and ethics. He may be reached at davidcossphilosopher@gmail.com.

Micah Dugas is a Visiting Assistant Professor at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette. He received his PhD in Philosophy from the University of Miami in 2015, where he wrote his dissertation on relativism, disagreement, and the norms of assertion. His areas of specialization include meta-epistemology, social epistemology, and formal semantics. He is also interested in logic, philosophy of mind, and the philosophy of technology. Contact: micahdugas2@gmail.com.

Tammo Lossau is a graduate student at the Department of Philosophy at Johns Hopkins University. His dissertation aims at discussing the role of skepticism for epistemic normativity. He is also interested in the semantics and pragmatics of knowledge ascriptions and methodological issues. Contact: lossau@jhu.edu.

Kirk Lougheed is a PhD candidate at McMaster University where he is the recipient of a doctoral scholarship from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada. His work appears in such places as Dialogue, Informal Logic, Ratio, Religious Studies, and Sophia. Contact: lougheek@mcmaster.ca.

Janet Michaud is a PhD Candidate in Philosophy and a Career Advisor (focusing on graduate and further education) at the University of Waterloo in Ontario, Canada. Her most recent project examines the benefits and barriers of engaged philosophy of science, the implications of limiting philosophical engagement within the academy, and aims to broaden the scope of philosophy of science by offering potential avenues and strategies to support engaged philosophy of science beyond academia. Contact: j2michaud@uwaterloo.ca.

Michael J. Shaffer is currently professor of philosophy at St. Cloud State University. He is also a fellow of the center for formal epistemology at Carnegie-Mellon University, a fellow of the Rotman Institute for Science and Values at the University of Western Ontario, a Lakatos fellow at the London School of Economics, a fellow of the University of Cologne's summer institute for epistemology and an NEH fellow at the University of Utah. His main areas of research interest are in epistemology, logic and the philosophy of science, and he has published nearly fifty articles on various topics in these areas. He is co-editor of What Place for the A Priori? (Open Court, 2011) and is the author of Counterfactuals and Scientific Realism (Palgrave-MacMillan, 2012), Quasi-factive Belief and Knowledge-like States (Lexington, forthcoming) and The Experimental Turn and the Methods of Philosophy (Routledge, forthcoming). He is also currently working on a co-authored book criticizing alternative medicine. Contact: shaffermphil@hotmail.com.

John Turri is Canada Research Chair in Philosophy and Cognitive Science at the University of Waterloo in Ontario, Canada. He directs the Philosophical Science Lab, where researchers use science to answer philosophical questions. His latest book, Knowledge and the Norm of Assertion: An Essay in Philosophical Science, is a groundbreaking study of human communication practices, synthesizing evidence from philosophy, psychology, and biology. Contact: john.turri@gmail.com.

Eric Wiland is Professor of Philosophy at the University of Missouri-St. Louis. He is the author of Reasons (Continuum, 2012) and various articles on advice, moral philosophy, epistemology, and practical reason, including "Moral Testimony: Going on the Offensive" (Oxford Studies in Metaethics, 2017), "Peer Disagreement and the Dunning-Kruger Effect" (Episteme, 2016), "In the Beginning was the Doing" (Canadian Journal of Philosophy, 2013), "How Indirect can Indirect Utilitarianism Be?" (Philosophy and Phenomenological Research, 2007). He is the chief organizer of St. Louis Annual Conference on Reasons and Rationality (SLACRR). Contact: wiland@gmail.com.