

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

Umut Baysan is a Lecturer in Philosophy at the University of Oxford. Previously, he worked as a University Teacher and a Postdoctoral Researcher at the University of Glasgow, where he obtained his PhD. His main areas of research are philosophy of mind and metaphysics, with research interests in epistemology. His research has appeared in journals such as Analysis, Australasian Journal of Philosophy, Erkenntnis, Logos and Episteme, Minds and Machines, and Philosophical Quarterly. Contact: umut.baysan@outlook.com.

John Biro teaches at the University of Florida. His interests are in the philosophy of language, the philosophy of mind, epistemology, metaphysics and the history of philosophy, especially in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. He has published papers in these areas in journals such as The Monist, Australasian Journal of Philosophy, Philosophy and Phenomenological Research, Philosophical Studies, History of Philosophy Quarterly, The Review of Metaphysics and Hume Studies. He is also co-editor of two collections of papers on Spinoza and one on Frege. Contact: jbiro@ufl.edu.

Fabio Lampert is a graduate student in the Department of Logic and Philosophy of Science at the University of California, Irvine. His main interests are in philosophical logic, logic, modality, epistemology, philosophy of language, metaphysics, and philosophy of religion. His publications include “Wierenga on Theism and Counterpossibles” (Philosophical Studies, forthcoming), “Actuality and the A Priori” (Philosophical Studies, 2018), “Actuality, Tableaux, and Two-Dimensional Modal Logics” (Erkenntnis, 2018), among others. Contact: fdalcont@uci.edu.

Miguel López-Astorga is Professor and Researcher at the University of Talca (Chile). His most recent research is focused on the human inferential activity and, especially, on the analysis of the relationships between syntax and semantics in the mental representations building processes and the derivation of conclusions. He is also interested in the reconstruction and the review of the potential of some ancient logics, particularly, Stoic logic. Contact: milopez@utalca.cl.

P.D. Magnus is a Professor of Philosophy at the University at Albany, State University of New York. He received his PhD from the University of California, San Diego and has been at Albany since 2004. His primary research is in the philosophy of science, motivated broadly by a fallibilist but non-sceptical conception of scientific knowledge. He is the author of Scientific Enquiry and Natural Kinds: From Planets to Mallards (Palgrave Macmillan, 2012) as well as dozens of articles. Contact: pmagnus@fecundity.com.

Timothy Perrine is a Post-Doctoral Research in the School of Philosophy at Wuhan University. He works primarily in epistemology, axiology, and philosophy of religion. He has published a number of papers in journals such as Synthese, European Journal of Philosophy, Acta Analytica, Sophia, Faith and Philosophy as well as edited volumes published by Oxford University Press and Cambridge University Press. Contact: timperrine@gmail.com.

Mattias Skipper is a PhD Student in the Department of Philosophy at Aarhus University. His work focuses primarily on topics in epistemology (including formal and social epistemology). He is the co-editor of Higher-Order Evidence: New Essays (with Asbjørn Steglich-Petersen, Oxford University Press, forthcoming), and his most recent papers include “Reconciling Enkrasia and Higher-Order Defeat” (Erkenntnis, 2018) and “A Higher-Order Approach to Disagreement” (with Asbjørn Steglich-Petersen and Jens Christian Bjerring, Episteme, 2018). Contact: filmsr@cas.au.dk.

Jacques-Henri Vollet is a postdoctoral visiting scholar in the department of philosophy at the University of Hamburg (Germany), funded by a grant from the Swiss National Science Foundation. He did his PhD at the University of Geneva (Switzerland). His areas of specialization include epistemology and the philosophy of normativity. Contact: jacquesvollet@yahoo.fr.