Questions is a unique forum for the philosophical questions—and answers—of young people and their teachers. Published annually, each issue contains transcripts of K–12 philosophical discussions, philosophical writings by students, drawings, essays, and articles offering advice and ideas for activities for teachers and parents interested in facilitating philosophical discussions with young people.

Funding for Questions is provided by the American Philosophical Association, the Northwest Center for Philosophy for Children, the Philosophy Documentation Center, York College of Pennsylvania, and generous donations from individuals. Copies of issues 1 and 2 of Questions are available for downloading at: www.pdcnet.org/questions.html. If you would like to subscribe to Questions, please send $25 for issue 9, which will be published in summer 2009.
