Information about authors

Jason Aleksander is Associate Professor of Philosophy at Saint Xavier University in Chicago. He works primarily in medieval and Renaissance philosophy and the philosophy of religion. His recent research focuses on Dante's Divine Comedy and Nicholas of Cusa. Some of his recent publications include: "'But following the literal sense, the Jews refuse to understand:' Hermeneutic Conflicts in Nicholas of Cusa's De pace fidei," (American Cusanus Society Newsletter, 2014); with Scott Aikin, "Nicholas of Cusa's De pace fidei and the Meta-Exclusivism of Religious Pluralism" (International Journal for the Philosophy of Religion, 2013); "The Problem of Theophany in Paradiso 33" (Essays in Medieval Studies, 2011); and "Dante's Understanding of the Two Ends of Human Desire and the Relationship between Philosophy and Theology" (The Journal of Religion, 2011). Contact: aleksander@sxu.edu.

Thom Brooks is Professor of Law and Government and Associate in Philosophy at Durham University and a Member of the University College, Durham Senior Common Room. He is the author of Hegel's Political Philosophy (2d 2013) and the award winning Punishment (2012). He has published over 130 articles in journals such as Ethics, Philosophical Topics and Utilitas among others and the founding editor of the Journal of Moral Philosophy. Brooks currently works in the areas of criminal justice policy and sentencing law, immigration and citizenship and global justice. He is co-editor of Rawls's Political Liberalism (2015) with Martha C. Nussbaum. Contact: thom.brooks@durham.ac.uk.

Amalia-Florentina Drăgulănescu is a critic and literary historian as well as a researcher at the Department of Literary History of "A. Philippide" Research Institute of Romanian Philology, Romanian Academy, Iaşi Branch. She holds a PhD in Humanities, specializing in Romanian Literary History since 2011. She is the author of Ambivalența tiparelor clasice în opera lui Mihai Eminescu/The Ambivalence of Classical Patterns in Mihai Eminescu's Work (2013). She received The Merit Award and The Courage Award for her scientific activity in haiku's field. She is specialized in history of literature and is also interested in comparative literature, literary hermeneutics, philology, cultural anthropology, and poetics. Between 1999 and 2006 she was editor at Poezia and Philologica Jassyensia. She is also guest editor of the International Journal of Literature and Arts Special Issue "Discourses of Militarization and Identity: Literature of Conflict" (2014). She is co-author of 7 reference works, the most important being Dicționarul General al Literaturii Române/General Dictionary of Romanian Literature (7 vols. 2004-2009), published by the Romanian Academy Publishing House. Contact: amalita004@yahoo.com.

Alexandru-Stelian Gulei is a PhD Fellow in the SOP HRD/159/1.5/133675 Project of the Romanian Academy, Iaşi Branch. He is a programs coordinator of Alternative Sociale Association. He is preparing a PhD thesis at the "Alexandru Ioan Cuza" University of Iasi on the subject of the remigration of Romanian children. His main areas of interest are social phenomena affecting children and families, including migration and its negative effects. His recent work includes "Strengths, Weaknesses and Challenges" (Migrant Children in Europe. The Romanian Case, IOS Press, 2013) and "The Reduction of Vulnerability to Trafficking In Persons Through Career Guidance" (Human Trafficking: Secularization and Public Policy Intervention, Institutul European Publishing, 2013). E-mail: agulei@gmail.com.

Ana Maria Hojbotă is Post-PhD Fellow in the SOP HRD/159/1.5/133675 Project of the Romanian Academy, Iaşi Branch, with a research project focused on the relationship between evaluative judgments in the moral domain and implicit theories of moral dispositions. She completed her PhD, defended in 2013, at the Faculty of Psychology and Educational Sciences, "Alexandru Ioan Cuza" University, Iaşi, Romania. She is also interested in psychology of talent and creativity, psychology of science, motivation and self-regulation, group dynamics and cognitive synergy. Her recent publications include: "Job Search Self-Efficacy as Mediator Between Employment Status and Symptoms of Anxiety" (with Andrei Rusu, Diana-Carmen Chiriac, and Nastasia Sălăgean, Romanian Journal of Applied Psychology, 2013) and "Naive Theories of Creativity and Sociocultural Factors Revisited. The Potential Explanatory Role of Creative Self-Efficacy and Creative Personal Identity and Independence Paradox in Creative Expression" (International Journal of Creativity & Problem Solving, 2013). Contact: a_hojbota @yahoo.com.

Ana-Nicoleta Huluba Grigore is PhD Fellow in the SOP HRD/159/1.5/133675 Project, Romanian Academy, Iaşi Branch, and a PhD candidate at "Alexandru Ioan Cuza" University, Iaşi. She's main areas of interest are educational and developmental psychology. She also published "Curent Forms of Violence Among Students: Bullying and Cyberbullying" (*Analele Ştiinţifice ale Universităţii "Alexandru Ioan Cuza", Seria Ştiinţele Educaţie*i, 2013). Contact: gri_ana@yahoo. com

Andreea Iancu is a PhD fellow in the SOP HRD/159/1.5/133675 Project, Romanian Academy, Iaşi Branch. She is a PhD candidate in Political Sciences at "Alexandru Ioan Cuza" University, Iaşi with the thesis Human Security and the Responsibility to Protect Principle. She holds a master in International Development Studies. Her main areas of interest are international relations, security studies, and international development. Contact: iancu.st.andreea@gmail.com.

Gary Francisco Keller is Regents' Professor and Director of the Hispanic Research Center, Arizona State University. He founded in 1973 and still edits, The Bilingual Review/La Revista Bilingüe acclaimed as a "major resource for academics or for teachers concerned with English-Spanish bilingualism in the United States." He has been the most successful publisher, editor and scholar to date in his effort to gain national attention for the United States Hispanic Literature. His current research and curatorial interests include Chicana/o Art, the image of and participation of Chicanos/Latinos in the United States and Mexican film, educational assessment, the linguistics of bilingualism, and pre-Hispanic iconography in Mesoamerica. Contact: gary.keller@asu.edu.

Cristina-Georgiana Voicu is Post-PhD Fellow in the SOP HRD/159/1.5/133675 Project, Romanian Academy, Iași Branch. She holds a PhD from "Alexandru Ioan Cuza" University, Iași with a thesis on the exploration of cultural identities including colonial and post-colonial literature, hybridity, Caribbean diaspora in Jean Rhys' Fiction (defended in 2011). Her main areas of interest are cultural studies, hermeneutics, and cognitive sciences. Her recent papers include: "Caribbean Cultural Creolization" (Procedia – Social and Behavioral Sciences, 2014) and "Weblogging: A Technological Framework Mediated by the Self" (forthcoming in Procedia – Social and Behavioral Sciences, 2015). Contact: voicucristina2004@yahoo.fr.