

About Our Contributors

Jeffrey P. Bishop is Professor of Philosophy at Saint Louis University, where he holds the Tenet Endowed Chair in Bioethics. He is the author of The Anticipatory Corpse: Medicine, Power, and the Care of the Dying (University of Notre Dame Press, 2011) and co-author of the Expanded Reason Award-winning book, Biopolitics After Neuroscience: Morality and the Economy of Virtue (Bloomsbury, 2022). Bishop's work in Critical philosophy explores the social, political, and historical underpinnings for claims made by science and technology. He is currently engaged in a project exploring process philosophy as it relates to the development of technology and culture.

David Carr is Emeritus Professor of the University of Edinburgh and was until recently Professor of Ethics and Education at the University of Birmingham (UK) Jubilee Centre for the Study of Character and Virtues. He is author of four books, editor or co-editor of several major collections of essays on philosophy and/or education and his papers have appeared in such journals as Mind, Philosophy, Philosophical Quarterly, Proceedings of the Aristotelian Society, Philosophical Studies, Journal of Value Inquiry, British Journal of Aesthetics, Educational Theory and Oxford Educational Review. Much of his work has explored aspects of virtue ethics and, more recently, the impact of literature and various other arts on moral character. A previous paper on love, entitled "Love, Knowledge and Moral Judgement," was published in Philosophy 94 (2019): 529–545.

C. Stephen Evans is a University Professor of Philosophy at Baylor University and holds a PhD in Philosophy from Yale University. His philosophical interests are the philosophy of Søren Kierkegaard, philosophy of religion, virtue ethics, and meta-ethics. He has held many positions of honor and has served as Professorial Fellow, Logos Institute for Exegetical and Analytic Theology, University of St. Andrews, Cornelia Marschall Smith Professor of the Year in 2018, Baylor University, Principal Investigator for $1,987,000 and a $234,000 grant from the Templeton Religion Trust, awarded for 2018–21 to study "Accountability as a Relational Virtue," Dean for Research and Scholarship, Calvin University, to mention a few. Evans has published several books: Kierkegaard and Spirituality: Accountability as the Meaning of Human Existence (2019), A History of Western Philosophy: From the Pre-Socratics to Post Modernism (2018), God and Moral Obligation (2013), Natural Signs and Knowledge of God: A New Look at Theistic Arguments (2010), Kierkegaard: An Introduction (2009), among others.

Casey Hall is a PhD Candidate of Philosophy and a Graduate Teaching Fellow at CUNY, New York. Hall is an Associate Professor of Philosophy at Christopher Newport University. She holds a B.A. in Philosophy from Christopher Newport University. Her philosophical interests are Ancient Greek philosophy, especially Plato's metaphysics, and epistemology. She has published articles in Pacific Philosophical Quarterly, Southwest Philosophy Review, History of Philosophy Quarterly, Philosophical Inquiry: An International Quarterly, Environment, Space, Place, to name a few.

Elizabeth Jelinek is an Associate Professor of Philosophy at Christopher Newport University. She holds a PhD in Philosophy from Duke University and a B.A. in Philosophy from Wellesley College. Her philosophical interests are Ancient Greek philosophy, especially Plato's metaphysics and epistemology. She has published articles in Pacific Philosophical Quarterly, History of Philosophy Quarterly, Apeiron, Southwest Philosophy Review, Philosophical Inquiry: An International Quarterly, and Teaching Philosophy, to name a few.

James Kintz is an Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Saint Joseph's College of Maine. He holds a PhD from Saint Louis University. His philosophical interests are Metaphysics, Medieval Philosophy, and Philosophy of Mind. He has published articles in Epoché, Religious Studies, The British Journal for the History of Philosophy, and The Review of Metaphysics.

Matthew McWhorter is an Assistant Professor at Divine Mercy University. He holds a PhD in Philosophy from Ave Maria University. His philosophical interests are Thomistic ontology, hermeneutics, and philosophy of mind. He has published articles in American Catholic Philosophical Quarterly, Angelicum, Journal of Theoretical and Philosophical Psychology, International Journal of Systematic Theology, Linacre Quarterly, NCBQ.

Andy Mullins is Adjunct Associate Professor at his alma mater, University of Notre Dame Australia. His philosophical interests are virtue based moral philosophy and applications to character education and parenting, neural bases of virtue, Thomistic philosophy of mind. He has published articles in International Journal of Sports Science and Coaching, Ethical Perspectives, and has published books like Parenting for Character (also in Spanish, Thai and Nigerian editions), Parenting for Faith (Scepter).

Brandon Rickabaugh is an Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Palm Beach Atlantic University. He holds a PhD in Philosophy from Baylor University. Among his philosophical interests are philosophy of mind, metaphysics, epistemology, philosophy of technology, and philosophy of religion. Rickabaugh is a Research Scholar of Public Philosophy, Palm Beach Atlantic University, and Franz Brentano Fellow at The Martin Institute. He has published articles in European Journal for Philosophy of Religion, International Journal for Philosophy of Religion, Trinity Journal, Heythrop Journal, Philosophia Christi, as well as written chapter in Faith and Virtue Formation (2021), and The Blackwell Companion to Substance Dualism (2018).