

F r o m   T h e   E d i t o r

It seems strange to think we have been at this for a year now. You may be wondering, why on earth are you just now getting around to publishing these stories as a magazine? The truth is, it hadn't even occurred to us. We always saw ourselves as short story publishers. But, of course, when you put together enough short stories, you have a magazine.

Our hope is that, by transitioning to a monthly magazine format, a few things will happen. First, it will simplify the process by which our readers find and read our stories. Rather than having different download links for each story, you now have just one email, and just one download. But, of course, there is the practical side of it too. We also hope that by packaging the stories in this way it will allow us to grow our revenue base. In our opinion, $1.95 for a monthly magazine is a pretty good deal.

We hope you enjoyed the stories, as well as the new format. If you ordered through our website, be sure to add magazine@afterdinnerconversation.com to your address book so the magazine keeps itself out of your spam folder when we send it out again next month.

Best Wishes,

Kolby Granville
