

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I need to thank Grand Valley State University (GVSU) for the sabbatical leave that enabled the production of the bulk of this work. Without such generous support and release time from teaching duties, this book would not exist. As I have presented small parts of this work over the past several years at various conferences, I would like to express thanks to the Media Ecology Association as well as the National Communication Association, including its Semiotics and Communication Division, the Rhetorical and Communication Theory Division, and the Kenneth Burke Society. These venues have given me space, time, and collegiate feedback and have greatly helped to settle the present ideas into their existing form.

Many people have helped me think about these ideas over past twenty years. I want to acknowledge friends with whom I have discussed these ideas at length, in particular Barry D. Liss, Bryan Wehr, and Abe Zakhem. I want to thank Phil Paradowski for reading passages of The Wisdom of the Sands aloud in his dorm room back in 1990. I also wish to acknowledge and thank my master's thesis committee members, Mary Anne Moffitt, John Cragan, and David Baldwin. I want to thank my colleagues and students at GVSU, especially Robert Mayberry, who introduced me to the works of Hans Jonas. Other colleagues at GVSU who I have talked with and gained ideas along the way include: Dewey Hoitinga, Barry Castro, John Drabinski, Allen Whipps, Mark Pestana, and Steven Rowe. For editorial assistance in the final stage I wish to thank Jermaine Martinez, Brett Lyszak, John Dowd, Denyse Seiler, Patrick Millard, and Barry D. Liss. I also want to thank Valerie V. Peterson for her love and support, for countless discussions, for her extensive suggestions, and for all of her useful editing assistance at various stages.

Lastly, I want to thank the Estate of Kenneth Burke for the kind permission to reprint Burke's poem "The Dialectician's Hymn." And I also wish to gratefully acknowledge Bill Watterson for the permission to reprint the cartoon from "Calvin and Hobbes."
