

Midwest Studies in Philosophy

Volume 46, 2022

Well-Being and Ill-Being

Guest Editor: Gwen Bradford

Introduction: A Very Brief History of Ill-Being	v
Gwen Bradford
The Value and Significance of Ill-Being	1
Christopher Woodard
Passé Pains	21
Ben Bramble
Ill-Being for Desire Satisfactionists	33
Chris Heathwood
Two Kinds of Desire Theory of Well-Being	55
Eden Lin
Ill-Being for Subjectivists: An Ecumenical Primer	87
Dale Dorsey
Subjective Theories of Ill-Being	109
Anthony Kelley
Subjectivists Should Say: Pain Is Bad Because of How It Feels	137
Jennifer Hawkins
Pain, Depression, and Goal-Fulfillment Theories of Ill-Being	165
Valerie Tiberius and Colin G. DeYoung
Less than Zero? Ill-Being, Robust Bads, and the Value-Fulfillment Theory	193
Jason Raibley
A Painful End for Perfectionism?	233
Guy Fletcher
Epistemic Welfare Bads and Other Failures of Reason	251
Antti Kauppinen
Doxastic Harm	281
Anne Baril
Ill-Being as Hating the Bad?	307
Teresa Bruno-Niño

On the Ill-Being of Animals:
From Factory Farm to Forever Home	325
Cheryl Abbate
Suffering and Meaning in the Lives of Wild Animals	355
Molly Gardner
Pessimism about the Future.....	373
Roger Crisp
Contributors	387
Midwest Studies in Philosophy: Published Volumes	391