

Radical Philosophy Review

Volume 15 • Number 1 • 2012

SPECIAL ISSUE VIOLENCE: SYSTEMIC, SYMBOLIC, AND FOUNDATIONAL

A Note from the Editor

Harry van der Linden iii

Guest Editors' Introduction

Brandon Absher, Anatole Anton, and José Jorge Mendoza 1

Systemic Violence

Is Nonviolence a Distinctive Ethical Idea?

Richard Peterson 7

On the Violence of Systemic Violence: A Critique of Slavoj Žižek

Harry van der Linden 33

Violence, Poverty, and Disaster: New Orleans, Haiti, and Chile

Naomi Zack 53

An Alternative Ontology of Food: Beyond Meataphysics

Lisa Heldke 67

Toward a Concept of Ecological Violence:

Martin Heidegger and Mountain Justice

Brandon Absher 89

Symbolic and Foundational Violence

Foundational Violence and the Politics of Erasure

Joan Cocks 103

Fuck Your God in the Disco:

Music, Torture, and the Divine at Guantánamo

Michael M. Moeller and
Andrew Sivak 127

Winner of the Iris Marion Young Award

Alienation and Its Discontents: Marxism, Conceptual Violence, and the Colonial Difference	Nikolay Karkov	145
The Violence of the Signifier and the Intelligence of the Flesh: Feminine Jouissance as Real and Substitutive Satisfaction	Niki D'Amore	155

Resistance

In Defense of Marxism	Milton Fisk	179
Can Capitalism Lead to Peace?: Revisiting Hilferding's Theory of "Realistic Pacificism"	William Smaldone	203
The Heavenly Protest: Toward a Liberation Theology of the Afterlife	Geoffrey Karabin	219
Violence at the Borders: Nomadic Solidarity and Non-Status Migrant Resistance	Thomas Nail	241
Socialist Solidarity: How Can We Tell Whether It Is Possible?	Richard Schmitt	259

CONTRIBUTORS	275
EXECUTIVE EDITORIAL COMMITTEE AND EDITORIAL BOARD	280