Eupraxophy* is a new term introduced by Paul Kurtz, derived from Greek roots: eu (good), praxis (practice), sophia (scientific and philosophical wisdom), meaning, literally, "good wisdom in conduct." The author wishes to go beyond "philosophy" which provides the love but not necessarily the practice of wisdom. For philosophers today, in presenting all sides of a question, are often neutral about taking a position. Eupraxophy provides both intellectual conviction and commitment. Humanist eupraxophy, in particular, provides (1) a method of inquiry, (2) a cosmic outlook based on the sciences, (3) a normative ethical life stance, and (4) a social polity.
